

Security company is a 'one-stop shop' for your facility

Commercial Fence & Access

For the past 63 years, Commercial Fence & Access has reputedly and safely served numerous Gulf Coast area businesses. There are two sides to the company. Commercial Fence performs perimeter security, crash barricades, barrier arms, gates and all fencing needs. Commercial Access handles all the integration, software, access control, CCTV, IP surveillance and intercom systems.

According to Mark Tuttle, sales and marketing manager for Commercial Access, "We're a one-stop shop for a facility. There are not too many companies in the United States that have that combination. It really makes it easy for a customer to secure an entire property or a facility. We can handle everything from perimeter security fencing all the way to card readers, access control and surveillance."

Commercial Fence

As an industry leader, Commercial Fence offers a full line of quality services to all its clients. The company not only installs all new fencing it also can perform repairs to all pre-existing fence, barriers and gates including chain link, wood and iron. It also has an emergency 24-hour on-call service available. Commercial Fence's custom design specialists can fabricate to meet your specific needs regarding all fence, gate and barrier applications.

"We are a full-service turnkey operation and have done a variety of work in the Houston Ship Channel including petrochemical plants," said David Carroll, Commercial Fence sales manager.

Commercial Fence can provide your company with concrete service for fence installations, repairs and custom needs. The company also offers next day delivery for rental panels as well as short- and long-term rentals. Its temporary fence (semi-permanent) provides users with a low cost product and quick installation.

"We have a well-trained staff with the experience needed to get the job done," said Carroll.

Commercial Access

Commercial Access is a full-service technologies integrator. The company can design, install and service security, access control, parking revenue systems, analog CCTV/digital surveillance, intercom, network cabling, perimeter protection, barrier arms, automated gates and crash barriers.

As a single source contractor, Commercial Access is capable of providing all labor for the installation of building and networking integration systems.

"We perform work in everything from the petrochemical market to campus scenarios like universities," said Tuttle. "We also do work for a lot of administration facilities for large companies including Fortune 100 and 500 companies."

The company's system design team can provide comprehensive submittal sets and detailed record drawings using a variety of CAD-based programs to assist in keeping continuity throughout your entire project and into the service plan.

Commercial Access believes that customer service is the cornerstone of its business. The company's service solutions include a centralized service department with Web-based applications that allow its technicians to update service calls, review call logs and receive e-mail notifications.

Whether you are planning for construction or renovation of your facility, Commercial Access will be an important step along the way.

"We have a well-trained staff with the experience needed to get the job done."

Pride in safety, company

With any company, the main safety goal is zero incidents, but few companies can boast achieving this goal.

According to Betty Rich, director of Human Resources and safety director at Commercial Fence, "We pride ourselves in that to date for 2009 we are at zero and we accomplished that in 2007 as well."

Maintaining this record is no easy task and involves extensive training.

"We have a very active and involved program where we train through the contractor's safety council for all of the chemical and petrochemical facilities in our area, as well as in-house training where we train all employees for basic OSHA rules and regulations, state requirements and industry trade guidelines," said Rich.

The dedication from its employees is another value Commercial Fence & Access takes pride in.

"We have long-term, loyal employees. Everybody treats each other with respect and consideration," said Rich. "Having been established for 63 years really makes us a family company."
